BEACH MORALS WELL GUARDED

LAW AND ORDER
VIOLATION CHECKED BY POLICE ACTIVITY

With the advent of the spring and summer season at the beaches, the usual yearly activity in the violation of law and order has been most materially checked during the past month by the constant watchfulness and conscientious work of the officers connected with the O. B. police sub-station. For the month of April the official blotter shows that over a score of arrests were made for violations of the Wright act and in nearly every instance the accused were found guilty in police court and fined an average of $250, the customary suspension of a part of the fines being held as a sword over the guilty in the event of future violation. No less than half a dozen alleged offenders were charged with taking automobiles without the consent of the owners (which constitutes grand larceny) and the accused have been held for trial in the superior court. Several cases of reckless driving while under the influence of intoxicants, were booked and jail sentences obtained upon reaching court. The long and strong arm of the law has also fallen quickly and severely upon several disturbers of the peace who have found that there's a limit to the use and abuse of the freedom of the beaches. Despite the fact that the territory covered by the three policemen of the O. B. sub-station includes three beach districts and Point Loma, stretching from Marine base to the ocean, lawlessness is well under control, while an undesirable element is kept away or forced to seek other fields through the vigilance of the officers of the O. B. police sub-station. With the increase of the beach population in the summer and the opening of the Mission Beach Amusement center on Decoration Day, it is understood that two or more policemen will be added to the force in this district. At present it consists of Sergeant George W. Churchman and officers R. G. Little and H. C. Kluge.

"Eumenides" At The Greek Theatre Next Thursday Evening

FINALE FROM KATHERINE TINGLEY'S PRODUCTION OF "THE EUMENIDES"

GRAND REVIVAL OF FAMOUS PLAY

CLASSICAL PRODUCTION
BY KATHERINE TINGLEY
AND STUDENT-PLAYERS

The forthcoming production of the Classical Greek drama "The Eumenides" of Aeschylus, in the Greek Theater at the International Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma, on Thursday evening, May 7, at 8:15 o'clock, is an event which is certain to be remembered as a unique experience by all lovers of the beautiful who have the good fortune to see it.

The presentation of a play by Katherine Tingley and her Student-Players of the Theosophical University is, indeed, not only an artistic event but also a spiritual experience for those who witness it, as well as for every student who contributes to its preparation or performance. Every play hitherto presented at the Greek Theater at Lomaland has struck a distinct note as an artistic achievement, but in addition to this a new quality of creative energy seems to be manifested in each successive production, giving a fuller expression to its indwelling spirit.

"True Drama," we are told, "is the soul's interpreter," and every true work of Art contains within itself the germ of infinite development. It has many aspects, and a universal quality of appeal; and is creative in that it has the power to awaken the creative imagination of the beholder,—to invoke the shaping, regenerative power of the ideal, in the great work of reconstructing the life of Humanity.

In Katherine Tingley's presentation of the great tragedy of Aeschylus this larger, more universal interpretation is made possible. It is here lifted above its more exclusive sphere of influence in the field of literature and scholarship, and the true emphasis is given through its deeper, spiritual power of appeal to the heart, rather than to the intellect. Here we see the profound teachings dealing with the epic of the human soul visualized in pictures of living beauty and glowing color—embodying thus with all the realism and resource of superb art and modern stage-craft—and in an environment of surpassing beauty—those spiritual realities which are true for all time and native to the heart of all mankind.

Tickets on sale from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. at Theosophical Bookstore, 1123 4th St., San Diego; phone Main 2166. For public transportation, take Motor Coaches leaving Voltaire and Bacon Streets, at 7:30 to theater entrance and return; round trip 25c. Private autos parked free of charge inside Theosophical Headquarters grounds.

"RACE THROUGH THE CLOUDS"

MANAGER H. S. BURNS

GETS GREAT RIDING DEVICE

FOR MISSION BEACH

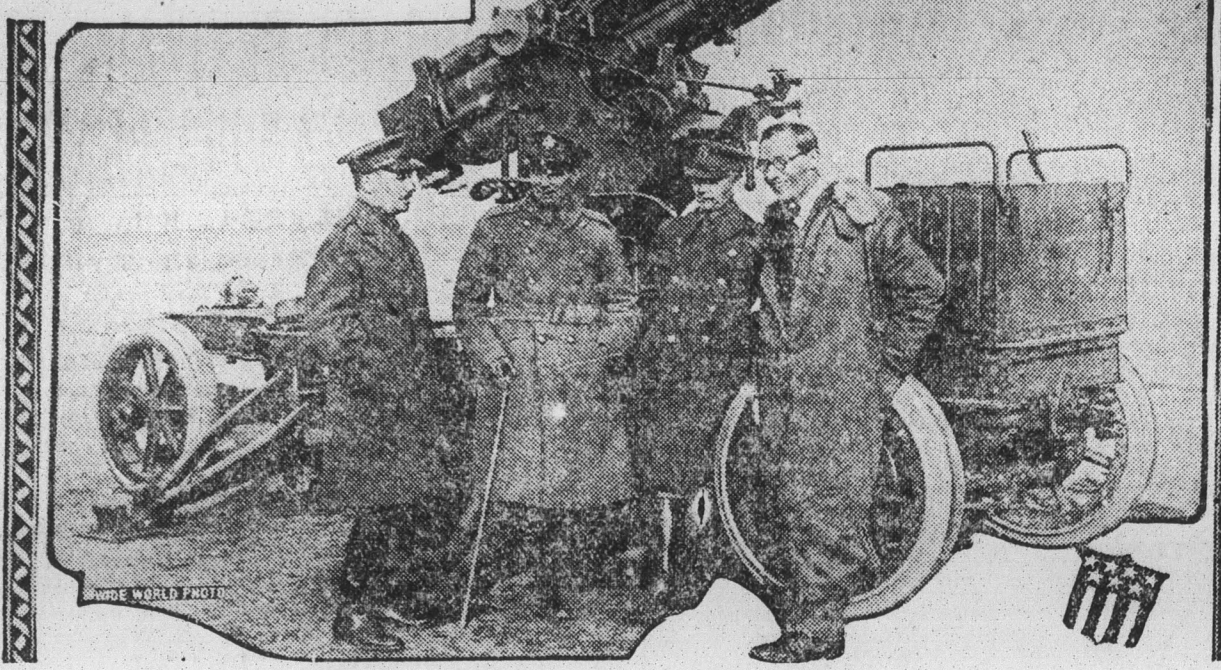

Herbert S. Burns, general manager of amusements and concessions for the Mission Beach Company, announces the closing of a contract this week with Prior and Church, noted builders of roller coasters and other thrillers, for the construction of a "giant dipper" at the new Mission Beach Amusement Center. It is stated that work on the largest riding device of its kind in the world will be begun at once, with positive promise of completion in time for the grand opening of the great amusement center on May 30. The Mission Beach roller coaster or "giant dipper," or "race through the clouds," as it also is known, will be built in the area north of the roller skating rink and east of the casino, the site occupying a plot 600 by 100 feet. Frank Prior, business manager, and Fred Church, construction engineer, have arrived in San Diego prepared to start work on their project. It is stated that the roller coaster will be one of five big amusement devices which Prior & Church eventually will install at Mission Beach, and will be financed by them.

An Amplifier Can Be Built at Home

Important Part, Simple to Make, Will Add to Receiving Set.

By J. FOABERT

The first step in the construction is the two end plates. These are made up of either cardboard, hard rubber or any of the numerous insulating materials on the market. If hardwood is used these should be cut two inches square and one-half inch thick. The center core hole should be drilled 7-16 inch in diameter and the two small holes are made with a number 30 drill.

It will be noted that the small holes are located differently in the two end blocks. The one side is for the primary and the other for the secondary wires. The edges of these holes should be well rounded to avoid chafing of the fine wire.

The end pieces are mounted on a bundle of core wires. The space between the end plates is three inches. Care should be taken to see that these core wires are kept perfectly straight and parallel. It is suggested that the wires be slightly moistened with oil to avoid rust.

After the end pieces are properly spaced the core should be wrapped twice around with two layers of waxed paper. This should exactly fill the space between the end blocks in order to avoid short circuiting the wires on the core.

For convenience it would be advisable to let the core wires project from one end plate one inch. This will permit mounting in a lathe chuck, thus facilitating the coil winding.

The supply spool from which the wire is unwound should rotate with a slight friction in order to avoid any tendency of spinning and thus accumulating an unnecessary length of loose wire. Care should be taken not to attempt winding too rapidly. Start slowly and gradually increase the speed as the work proceeds.

The primary winding should be wound in smooth consecutive layers until the diameter is 13-16 inch. In calipering this diameter the sharp ends of the callipers should not scratch or damage the insulation on the wire. Avoid all kinks in the wire. In fact, a kink should be treated as a break and the two ends should be twisted together, soldered and then wrapped with a thin piece of silk.

The wire must be wound on evenly from end to end. This method of winding avoids any comparatively large differences of potential between layers. After the primary winding has been completed it should be tested with a milliammeter or galvanometer and a 6-volt battery. The ends of the primary winding should project through the two holes nearest to the core holes.

When the primary winding is complete, two or three layers of paraffin paper should be wrapped around the primary winding to provide an insulation between the coils. The secondary coil is wound in the same manner to a diameter of 1 1/2 inches. The beginning and end should be reinforced with a heavier gauge wire and then led out through the end piece in the holes farthest out.

When the secondary winding is complete, cover it with a layer or two of paraffin paper and then wind tightly with tape.

The complete coil is mounted on a wooden or fiber base plate and fastened in place by means of four angles, as shown. The ends of the primary and secondary are secured to binding posts and marked in the usual manner.—Radio Digest.

Counterpoise and Its Use as Ground for Set

A counterpoise in most cases will be found considerably better than an ordinary ground. Before attempting to construct one, however, it is well to try an efficient ground connection. This is best obtained by grounding to everything in sight—that is, to water pipes, vent pipes, etc., omitting gas pipes, as they seldom improve radio reception.

To construct a counterpoise string wires under the antenna. For receiving purposes the number of wires in the counterpoise should be at least equal to the number in the aerial and, if space permits, directly under the antenna. The best construction is to have it about five feet longer than the aerial and from one to twelve feet off the ground. It will be easy to see that the antenna system will have a lower natural period when a counterpoise is employed. This, however, in all probability, will make no difference.

ZOO NOTES

"Hear the latest news of happenings at the zoo," said Bennie Brownie.

"My brother, Billie, has just come back, bringing with him the latest news of the zoo, and he has written the news upon these pieces of birch bark."

"One copy to everyone upon payment of five Fairyland spring blossoms."

So everyone carried five spring blossoms into the heart of Fairyland and bought a copy of the birch bark.

zoo notes upon which Billie Brownie had written the following items of zoo news:

Young Mr. Leopard Seal has a great friend. A little girl has made a pet of him, and he will do wonderful tricks for her and for her friends. He has a handsome spotted coat and beautiful eyes which show that he is clever.

Members of the Llama family, from South America, say that they are distantly related to the Camels.

Mrs. Camel has a baby daughter. Mother and child are both as happy as can be. Little Miss Camel loves her mother and her mother loves her. It is a way mothers and children have.

Mrs. Lion has three fine little cubs. She will not let anyone near them but is taking care of them herself.

The Iguanas from South America and the Rhinoceros Iguanas from Hayti are relatives. They do not like the cold of a Northern winter and wish to state that they are thankful that spring has come and that summer will be here shortly. They belong to the lizard family and have great folds of wrinkly skin.

The White-Tailed Deer belongs to America and also has many relatives—mostly from Asia.

The California Seals are good natured all the time. When the cold weather was here they played in the icy water. They caught their meals of fish thrown them before they landed in the water.

They had learnt to be swimmers when they had been a few weeks old.

They could dive and do tricks and were willing and happy and full of fun.

"Winter or summer," they said, "makes no difference to us. Life is always pleasant, and we California Seals are as sunny and cheery as is the climate of our own home state."

Mr. Polar Bear is kept from the Seals for he is their enemy. However, they are safe from him in the zoo, and they don't even have to see him.

The Tasmanian Wolf lives in great crevices in the rocks when free. He has stripes on his brownish-gray coat and is a wild fighter when he wants to be.

Little Lemur is a relative of the monkeys. When in his home in Madagascar he lives in the trees, playing and marketing at night when he shrieks and cries as he goes about, jumping from tree to tree.

He sleeps all day when he is free.

Mr. Owl says that in this way the Lemur is like himself. Mr. Owl, of course, likes to sleep by day and stay awake by night.

He says he thinks one of the reasons he is supposed to be so wise is because he happens to be awake when every one else feels sleepy and stupid.

Then when they feel that way and wake up and see him with such a wide-awake look on his face, and his eyes so keen and bright they think to themselves how dull and stupid they feel and how bright Mr. Owl looks.

Mr. Owl says at least it is smart of him to look so wise even if he isn't as wise as he looks.

Mr. Raccoon is another night creature. He is a funny, playful animal and he has a cousin now who is the pet of a little boy.

He says the Raccoon family have been dozing a good part of the winter but that they are all wide awake now.

And: The zoo animals send their greetings to their friends.

No Such Car

The teacher was trying to give her pupils an illustration of the word "perseverance."

"What is it," she asked, "that carries a man along rough roads and smooth roads, up hills and down hills, through jungles and swamps and raging torrents?"

There was a silence, and then Tommy, whose father was an auto dealer, spoke up.

"Please, miss," he said, "there ain't no such car."

TEACHES SCHOOL BY DAY AND IS ROBBER AT NIGHT

Amazing Story of Double Life Revealed in Arrest of Chicago Man.

Chicago.—The strange double life of Edward Fey, who was a school teacher by day and a leader of bandits by night, is similar to that led by Doctor Jekyll and Mr. Hyde of fiction.

The more the authorities learned of their youthful prisoner, the more they were amazed at the dual life of Fey revealed by the investigation.

It was a study in lights and darks. At home he was a dutiful son, who helped his parents in every possible way; with the "gang" he was the leader, who supplied not only the brains but also the nerve.

By his pupils and by the neighbors he was considered a friendly and lovable young chap; but his reputation with the gang was that he would shoot it out if the occasion demanded.

Principal Startled

No one was more surprised at the news of his arrest than G. E. Anspach, principal of the Komensky public school, where Fey taught manual training.

"It's almost impossible—I just can't believe it," the principal said when asked if he knew about Fey's record.

"I only wish that all my teachers would show as much ability at their work as he did. One of our greatest problems is discipline. Mr. Fey was a new man here; this was his third week. And that is just the time when the pupils try to take advantage.

Leader of Bandits by Night

"In spite of this Mr. Fey maintained perfect discipline in his classes. Never once did he send a pupil to me because of his inability to handle the case."

And when Fey's pupils read about their bandit teacher they were just as surprised as was their principal. John Brunsluk, twelve, of 2011 South Throop street, in the high seventh grade, told about his teacher.

"Sure, we liked him all right," he said, and then qualified the remark with, "but he was a little strict. Once he made me stand in the corner for half an hour because I talked to one of the guys in the class."

"But he helps us out a lot with our models. I'm making a rack for knives, forks and spoons for my mother, and he helps me a lot. He always says good-by to us, too, when we leave."

Father Breaks Down

When his father, who is a plumber, saw him in court he broke down; the boy unemotionally tried to comfort him by patting him on the shoulder and whispering to him. Judge Hamlin held Fey over to the grand jury on a charge of burglary.

While Fey's principal and pupils were singing his praises as a teacher Fey was sitting in his cell in the Fillmore station, calmly telling reporters about his escapade.

A high forehead, a sharp nose and thin face, and lips that closed tightly, give Fey the appearance of a scholar. He wore a black bow tie, white soft-collar shirt, a blue suit with white pencil stripes, brown shoes and black silk socks.

Mildred Cady, wife of Fey's companion in crime, and Betty White, her companion, who was found in the flat at 639 Gary place, where Cady was taken, were booked for disorderly conduct. Mildred was released on bond, but Betty remained in jail.

Woman's Utopia Found; Each Has 5 Husbands

Pittsburgh.—The woman's paradise has been found. Andre Avinoc, entomologist in Carnegie museum, former Russian nobleman, artist and traveler, was one of the discoverers of the feminine Utopia.

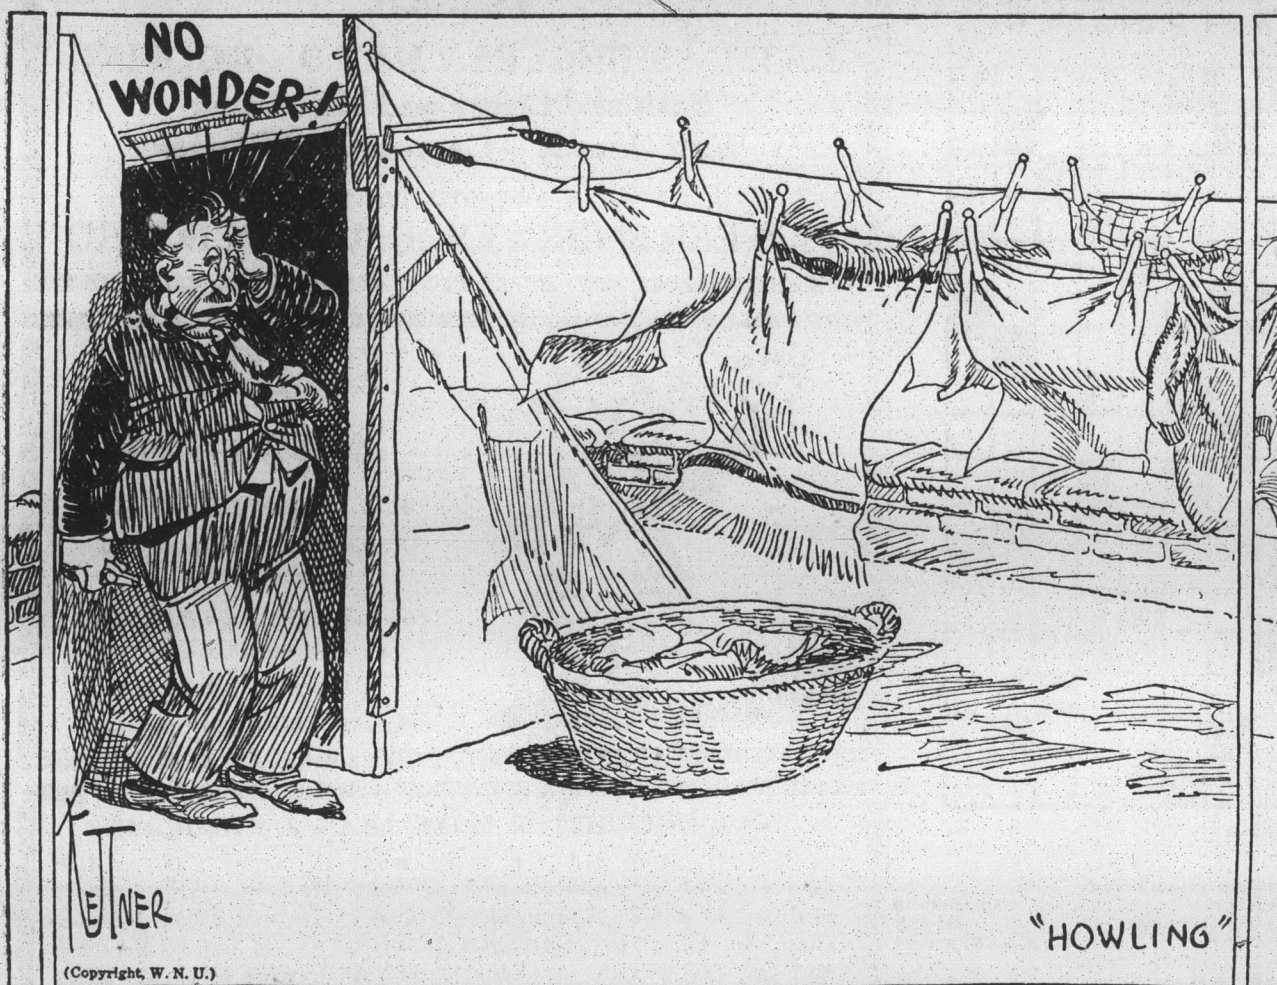

"It's Ladack, or West Tibet, on the fringe of the Himalaya mountains," he says.

"Milady of Ladack has from three to five husbands. The men tend the looms, and find recreation in knitting contests. Woman is boss. Any men that are left over go to the monasteries, where they toil, write, chant and do the things that monks do."

Community Building

Cogent Reasons Why One Should Own Home

"Home owners are the builders and principal supporters of our churches. You seldom see a new church being built in a neighborhood of apartments and rooming houses. The churches that are already there rely for their support chiefly upon endowments, or the generosity of people who have long since left the neighborhood."

"With the approaching years the need of a permanent home becomes more apparent," a Detroit realtor pointed out recently in a radio broadcast. "Age does not readily lend itself to change. The desire for undisturbed repose and assurance of shelter increases with the passing years. In mature years one does not become accustomed to new surroundings as readily as in youth."

"Any man who is everlastingly chasing rainbows, inventing excuses, and does not attempt to provide his family with a home isn't fit to be the head of his household. He should stand aside and let his wife or someone else fulfill his obligations."

"I realize that my thoughts tonight have been following a serious vein and that the radio is more commonly used for jazz than to inspire meditation. However, the Detroit couple, or in fact that couple in any progressive American city, who do not own their home will soon be confronted with a very serious problem. The country is growing with extreme rapidity and prices have a tendency to increase with growth."

"This more especially applies to desirable locations. If you have not already started on the road to home ownership let this year mark your beginning, even though the actual beginning be nothing more than asking how or where to start."

Bright, Orderly Village Attractive to Buyers

In every town there should be some intelligent supervision. And this should be much more easily obtained than in a city. In villages the interests are peculiarly common to all. What benefits one in some measure benefits everyone. It should be easy to establish a policy of co-operation. There would be certain standards to be sought; certain things to be prohibited. Ugliness would be abolished by common consent. Order should be the rule and habit. Leadership would be needed, but there is leadership, potential or active, in every community. Whatever would make the villages brighter and more orderly would make them more attractive to the buyer, to the traveler and to the homeseeker.

A village is more than a mere community; it is a community center. It can afford recreation for its own and for those it seeks to interest in its business or its affairs, for the farmers and their families, who need entertainment and diversion in their busy lives.—Kansas City Star.

Attracting Industries

A prosperous industry in any community is one of the most attractive invitations to other industries. Far-sighted men seeking locations for manufacturing enterprises are impressed with the success of other enterprises which have preceded them in the field under contemplation. One profitable industry often does more to attract others than the combined efforts of civic organizations and community boosters. An industry which is on its list legs not only contributes nothing directly to the good of a community, but indirectly injures it by warning prospective investors not to come. Every community wants bigger payrolls, but it is not always necessary to bring in new concerns in order to achieve that end.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Have a Home if Possible

No family can ever feel for a rented house that deep-seated affection which is naturally developed for a home they own. There is little incentive to adorn and beautify the house and the yard which belong to another. But when the place that shelters the family group is their own every added beauty, every tree and shrub and flower planted, adds new charm to life and strengthens the ties that bind the happy hearts.—New York Herald-Tribune.

Business Text

"The kind of booster we like," says the Tifton Gazette, "is the one who spends his money at home. Boosting by word of mouth is fine, and it helps, but boosting business by trading at home is even better. Be selfish enough to spend your money where you will have a chance to get it back."

Civic Pride Contagious

Did you ever notice how contagious is the spirit of civic pride, which causes our citizens to keep neat, clean, attractive yards? An exchange asks. Other citizens up and down the street catch the spirit and soon the whole street presents an attractive appearance.

WOES OF A PILL ROLLER

Originating in a suburb of little old
"New Yawk," the following verse by a Jersey jingler is going the rounds:

The Suburban Druggist

For sixteen weary hours a day
We serve, in our humble way;
Of information we dispense
A fund and postage stamps (two cents).

We honor checks, serve water free,
We run a prompt delivery,
Lend money when our friends are broke

And watch the debts go up in smoke.
We wrap up bundles, small and large,
For checking parcels make no charge,
To church and club and fund brigade

Give freely and extend first aid,
Take messages, help patrons phone,
Pile extra high the ice cream cone.
We furnish matches, make change,

too,
And cheer up friends when they are blue;
We do our best, you plainly see,
And make a sale occasionally.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

MARRIAGE INSTEAD OF TRIAL

A wedding ceremony took the place this week of a court hearing when Edward Gomez was arranged before Judge Griffin on a juvenile court charge with Evelyn Phillips.
Gomez and the girl were taken into custody by the police morals squad when found in an automobile last Saturday night at the foot of Brigh-

PIONEER RESIDENTS

CELEBRATE FORTY-EIGHTH

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roberts, of Rosecrans Street, celebrated their forty-eighth wedding anniversary this week with a delightful family reunion and reception at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Walter Hume of 3034 Carleton Street, Point Loma. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts have been residents of San Diego for over forty years and have lived most enjoyably for the past seventeen years on Point Loma, where they are highly esteemed among a wide circle of friends.

HERE FROM SACRAMENTO

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie E. Lyman and their little son, Eugene, and Mr. Roy Hines and Mrs. Edna Downes, all of Sacramento, have arrived here for the summer and are occupying the Campbell dwelling on Cable street.

VISITING HER DAUGHTERS

Mrs. L. A. Chegidden, of 4783 Long Branch Avenue, is in Los Angeles this week visiting her daughters.

GONE TO ILLINOIS

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Cassidy, who formerly resided in one of the Penny cottages on Saratoga avenue, left recently for Antioch, Illinois.

DELIGHTFUL BRIDGE DINNER

Mrs. Lewis Cass Barnett, of Duluth, Minnesota, is being entertained on Point Loma and in the city. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ross, of Lucinda Street, gave a delightful bridge dinner in her honor last Friday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Kettenburg, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Tomblar, Mrs. George Crook, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Barkley, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. H. Meyers, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. White, Mrs. F. R. White, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rosie and Mrs. Helen Davis.

BOY SCOUTS ENTERTAIN

Under the direction of Robert Ross, Assistant Scout Master, Boy Scouts No. 226 gave a fine program at the Point Loma school yesterday, (Friday) evening. The events consisted of some semaphore signalling, first aid, and knot tying demonstrations.

GOING ON VACATION

Mrs. Cora Provin, the popular night operator at the Point Loma Exchange is leaving shortly for a three months' furlough. Mrs. Provin has invitations that will take her to Chicago, Detroit and to her old home in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

VISITORS FROM THE BAY CITY

Francois Cloux and daughter, residents of San Francisco, spent a delightful week recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Garnier, at 4959 Brighton Avenue. The visitors were greatly impressed with the several improvements made at Ocean Beach and promised to return again soon.

SCHAEFFER-BOURGESS

A marriage license announcement this week reads: Phil J. Schaeffer, 32, Ocean Beach; Margaret E. Bourgess, 24, San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill of Roseville are visiting in Oxnard.

Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Silva of Carleton Street motored to Hemet for the week-end.

Paul Steel of Willow Street has gone to Boston, Massachusetts by way of the southern route. He will return by the Canadian Pacific.

Miss Elsie Moriarty of Santee, art director for the forthcoming production of "Trelawney of the Wells" by the State College Drama Players, is the house guest of Miss May Davidson.

INITIAL ANNIVERSARY

FOR FLORA ALICE

A joyful birthday party was recently given by Mrs. Henry Jackson of Santa Monica Ave., in honor of the first birthday anniversary of her daughter, Flora Alice. Games were enjoyed by all and prizes awarded to Ruth Hubbard and Jean Miller. The table was decorated with pink baskets and sweet peas. Refreshments were served.

The invited guests included Ruth and Dorothy Hubbard, Jean, Ada, Elsie, Jack Miller, Jimmie Dougherty, Winifred Kenline, Dorothy Jackson, Mrs. Wm. Dougherty, Mrs. C. Hubbard, Mrs. Geo. J. Kenline.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Dr. and Mrs. Edward McGroarty of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. James McGroarty of Boston, were the guests last Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fearing Gill of Armada Way, Point Loma. These visitors, cousins of John Steven McGroarty who through his Mission Play, his verse and historical works has done so much to build California's fame, were entertained also by Dr. and Mrs. John J. Shea at their home on Fifth Street.

I SAW YOU MOVING FORWARD

I saw you moving forward in the light,
 And your face was every peacefulness.
 I said, "Can this be you? And is it right?
 And are you fit for glory? What of your long night?
 You did not bless
 The lives of those that loved you.
 Something less
 Than knightly honor marked you in the fight."

Although you gave no sign as you went on,
 My soul had answer quickly from your soul:
 "Yes, this is I and it is right. The dawn
 Came when I would not yield. And now my night is gone.
 I am not whole,
 But, fighting, had I glimpses of the Goal."

And all about you God's white blindness shone.
 Winifred Davidson in "Ajax"

KEEPING WELL

SUPPLYING LOST HUMAN PARTS

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
 Editor of "HEALTH"

SURGEONS, today, make new noses and fingers from other parts of the patient's body. The time may come when you can get a new hand or a new foot as easily as you now buy a pair of gloves.

How would this be possible? By saving the healthy parts of the bodies of persons killed by accident and grafting them on to the bodies of persons who have lost these parts. The difficulty does not lie in the grafting but in the possibility of preserving life in the bodily structures for an indefinite length of time.

Incredible as it may seem, a beginning has actually been made. Eight years ago, Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute took the lining membrane of a hen's egg and put it into a normal salt solution in a vessel where the heat was automatically regulated. That membrane is still alive and growing. This is the only instance in which living matter has been kept alive outside of the animal body.

Carrel was sent over to France early in the war to work out a method of treating infected wounds. Working with Dakin, an English chemist, he devised what is now known as the Carrel-Dakin solution, by which polluted wounds could be made so clean that they healed, as surgeons used to say, "by first intention."

Carrel says that the methods by which he kept alive the chick's membrane may be developed to a point where entire members of the human body may be kept in a state of suspended animation.

When a young and healthy man is killed by a street car or an automobile, when a brick falls and strikes a passerby on the head, causing death by the injury of some vital part, the rest of the body may be in perfect health. Why not use the sound parts of these bodies to restore the damaged parts of people otherwise healthy?

The day may come when every large city will have an anatomical cold-storage warehouse in which hands and feet, arms and legs, ears and noses will be preserved. Then the crippled man can tell the surgeon, "I want a left foot, size 6½, grafted on to take the place of the one I have lost."

Does this seem impossible? It isn't a bit more so than things done every day would have seemed to the surgeon of a hundred years ago.

ARRANGED FOR THIS MONTH TO TEST SERVICE

Concerning the request of the San Diego Electric Railway Company that it be granted a conference with the city council for the purpose of re-establishing the schedule on the Point Loma Motor Coach line, City Manager Rhodes last Monday recommended as follows to the city council:

That the company be requested to run this motor coach line on its present schedule from San Clemente and Voltaire streets, along Voltaire to Abbott, thence on Abbott to Newport, thence on Newport to Cable street, with return trip over the same streets. He requests that the company operate on this schedule from May 1 to June 1, at which time they shall make a report to the council showing the losses for the period.

The company asserts that the cost of operating the bus line greatly exceeds the income. The recommendations of the manager were adopted by the council.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

DO NOT LOSE HOPE

FREQUENTLY, when the days seem darkest and troubles roll in upon you like the storming waves of the sea, trying their best to overwhelm you, sunny-faced Hope is hovering near, ready to rescue you at your bidding.

Thousands of weary souls on the very threshold of discouragement, about to yield to the crushing weight of their burdens, have at the last moment resolutely resolved to stand up and make a new fight.

This resolution, in perhaps the most trying hour of their lives, marked the turning-point in their careers.

They found a new courage which carried them on and on, carrying them safely through their hardest battles, where they fought inch by inch until the shout of victory stirred their hearts, warmed their blood and cleared their vision.

From doubting Thomases they became sanguine Pauls, filled with the spirit of faith.

They saw new visions and dreamed new dreams.

They had strength of their own instead of that borrowed from others, which through adversity they soon learned how to use to advantage.

Such are the men and women who today are making a better world for all mankind.

There is nothing too big for them to undertake, no load too heavy for them to carry, no troublesome hills over which they cannot blaze an easy path for the less confident to follow.

Leaders in their chosen fields of labor, they take part in the boldest and noblest adventures, never growing weary of well-doing, never faltering by the wayside, never declining to lend a helping hand to the earnest, struggling in their first effort.

They think, plan, organize, achieve and create, while those without hope, hesitate, draw back, afraid to step up in the clearer, invigorating air and wage the battle with alert brains, hard sinewed arms and hearts unafraid.

They turn stubborn difficulties into willing servants, surmount impending obstacles, write their names on the eternal skies, and call lustily to the new generations to gird their armor, accept Hope as their captain until the end of their days.

Your Last Name

IS IT MAYO?

THIS is one of the many names derived from Matthew. Other forms still found are Mayhew and Maydew. The French form of the same name is Mahieu. The last names May and sometimes Mayson are said to be derived from these forms of Matthew.

In old records the name is spelled in a variety of ways. Mayow and Mayouwe are ways preserved in old records.

In this country the family was founded by a prominent Puritan minister. This was the Rev. John Mayo, who was the first minister of the Second church of Boston, taking that position in 1655. The Rev. Amory Dwight Mayo was also distinguished as an educator.

William Mayo also founded the Virginia family of the name. He was a pioneer surveyor of Virginia and the Barbadoes, who was born in England in 1680 or thereabouts. Robert W. Mayo, born in Powhatan, Va., in 1784, a writer, was a descendant of his.

In England the earls of Mayo are well known among the aristocracy. The family name of these earls, however, is Bourke. There have been many clergymen and religious reformers among the English Mayos. The family is prominent in Herefordshire, from whence William Mayo, who founded the New England branch of the family, probably came. There is also a large family of the name located in Bree in Cornwall.

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WE WHO are lazy, we who shirk, I wonder is the trouble this? That we must scourge ourselves to work

Because the larger view we miss? Why do we labor? Is it just To serve ourselves, and not the age? Are we as common as the dust In which we labor for our wage?

If so, we earn a poor reward.

However great our wage may be.

'Tis not for wage men wear the sword.

Or plow the land, or fell the tree.

Who sees within the tree a hearth.

The nourishment within the soil.

Who sees a sword to free the earth.

He needs no scourge to make him toll.

The world wheels forward like a car.

Essential every working cog;

Whatever your labor, what you are,

Behind a desk, upon a log.

You play your necessary part;

In all the work there is to do;

ULCER OF THE STOMACH

ULCER of the stomach comes to those who are anemic, who work hard and are poorly nourished, and occasionally to those whose gastric juice is acid and corrosive, or who have some kind of corrosive juice in the stomach from whatever source.

It may be a long time coming on, and may last for years. There are different kinds, in the sense that there are ulcers of different size, of different degrees of discharge and absorption, and of different degrees of poisoning and harmfulness in other ways.

In most cases the ulcer does not eat through or perforate the entire wall of the stomach; for that would almost certainly mean the occurrence in such cases of peritonitis, which usually would quickly have a fatal issue.

An accident which is not unusual with this disease and often is serious or fatal, is hemorrhage; and as it is wont to come on suddenly, without warning, it must always be anticipated and prepared for, when ulcer is known or suspected.

The treatment is principally dietetic, the diet being composed of simple substances which may be easily digested; meat and other foods which are digested in the stomach, with the exception of milk, being excluded.

Medical treatment is also useful in some instances, especially such medicines as may have an astringent and healing tendency, for example bismuth.

If the diagnosis is clearly made out, an operation by a skillful surgeon will result in a cure of the ulcer, but this does not mean that other ulcers may not develop.

There is usually but one ulcer, but others may be in the course of formation and it is quite possible to overlook them in the performance of an operation. If the corrosion has made only slight or moderate progress.

Many cases are cured by medical measures, and it by no means follows that every case which is discovered must be treated surgically.

THE ORGANIST OF SULZBACH

By FRED R. WEBBER

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

IN THE little German town of Sulzbach, Josef Rudolstadt was an important man. For more than fifty years he had been organist of the village church. And to be the organist of the village church of Sulzbach is a distinction second only to that of being burgomaster or pastor. But both organ and organist had become so old that even the ultra-conservative townspeople saw that a change was necessary. To buy a new organ was not a difficult matter, but to discharge the old organist, now too feeble to fill the position, was another thing.

A popular subscription was taken, and the townspeople saw visions of an organ that would be the pride of the lower Rhine-country. Builders were called from Brussels, and in the course of time the organ was built, brought to Sulzbach and set up.

On the day that the work was completed, the question of the old organist's dismissal was settled, for it was learned that Josef Rudolstadt had died during the night.

Now another question arose. Who was to play the new organ? Such a position of honor could not be given to the first man who applied for it. True, Sulzbach had a dozen aspiring organists, yet only two seemed eligible. One was Pierre Esquerre and the other was Karl Rudolstadt, son of the old organist.

Pierre was a Frenchman, and had lived in the town for years. His house was in the lower part of the town, near the Rhine. This, together with the fact that Pierre was a musician of exceptional ability, was all that the people of the town knew about him, for he was a man who kept much to himself. Gossip had never hit upon any explanation of his past. Just why so talented a man should be content to live in a village and teach music was a matter that had never been explained.

Karl Rudolstadt was a man of considerable popularity. He had spent all his life in the town, was well known and well liked. Karl had inherited his musical talent from his father, and had spent years in training, under the direction of the old organ master.

Such a man was fitted for the position, his friends insisted. But there were others who were determined that the Frenchman's great skill should not be ignored. The question agitated Sulzbach for days. It was discussed with much vehemence by the townspeople, and whenever a group of people were seen on the street, it was reasonably certain that the topic of conversation was the Esquerre-Rudolstadt controversy.

Finally a plan was evolved and agreed upon. It was decided to have a trial day, and the rival musicians were each to play. The townspeople were to be the judges, and the selection of the organist was to be by popular vote.

For days the rival musicians practiced on the big organ.

Finally the trial day arrived. It had been declared a public holiday, and every man who could brought his family to the church to hear the candidates play.

The pastor of the church announced the conditions. Each organist was to have the privilege of playing whatever he wished. If either of the two refused to compete, the choice was to go to his rival. Every person above the age of eighteen was entitled to one vote, and their choice would decide the question of this moment.

The name of Pierre Esquerre was announced. There was much suppressed excitement when the Frenchman took his place at the organ and arranged his stops.

The people of Sulzbach had never heard such playing. Pierre had chosen only one number. He started with the soft toned stops of the organ, gradually added to his registration, building up his theme as he went, until he reached the climax in a thunder of diapasons that brought the entire audience to their feet.

He left the organ bench flushed, and with a look of conscious triumph. The people were speechless for a time. Then they looked at one another in amazement, for when had any of them heard such playing! They discussed it in suppressed whispers. It was wonderful! But others insisted that Karl Rudolstadt could outdo the Frenchman.

The name of the young German was announced, and the people were all attention. But the rival candidate did not appear.

Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, then half an hour. The people grew restless. Then it was suggested that Pierre be elected, for by the terms of the trial, Rudolstadt's absence made him ineligible. The German's friends protested, because they knew that Karl was no coward, and that he was not absent voluntarily. Messengers were sent out, but the man could not be found.

A vote was taken and the Frenchman elected.

Days passed, and Karl Rudolstadt did not return. The town was agitated for a while, for it was not usual for a man to leave his family and friends in such a manner, especially in a community where generations live and die, and no one thinks of moving away. Gradually the matter was forgotten, and in the course of time it became a tradition of the village.

The organ and the organist were famed throughout the region, and many tales were told of the wonderful skill of the organist.

Finally, before a fest-day, it was decided to repair the organ. The French organist, now grown old, had kept it in repair, but now it needed a thorough overhauling, and the builders were sent for and arrived.

That night Pierre Esquerre was seen entering the church.

On the following day the master-builder who was repairing the organ, left the church in great excitement and summoned one of the town officials.

The builder led the way to the church, and motioned for the selectman to follow him to the organ loft.

"Put your foot on that pedal," the builder said.

The selectman obeyed, but there was no sound.

"What is wrong with the organ? Why will that pedal not sound?"

"Follow me and you'll see."

The master-builder hurriedly led the way to the back of the organ and up a long ladder to a platform. Below were the rows of great, open pedal-pipes.

The builder lowered his light into one of them and motioned for the town official to look.

"A man's feet!" the selectman cried.

After a hurried discussion, a number of workmen were called, and the big pipe was lifted out and laid on the floor of the organ loft. Then the workmen drew from the inside of the pipe the body of the old Frenchman. The men were horrified. No one cared especially for the sinister old organist, but the manner of his death was terrible.

One of the men, examining the body, gave a cry, and called the attention of his companions to a rope clutched in the hand of the dead Pierre.

They pulled the rope out of the pipe, and at its end was a bundle. The selectman's eyes flashed meaningfully.

"I have always suspected," he said; "now we shall see."

He cut the leather thongs and unrolled a faded coat of peculiar make that even the younger men remembered as belonging to the missing organist. Inside of this was another bundle, in which was a watch, a watch and several smaller articles of jewelry. In the case of the watch was engraved: "Karl Rudolstadt, Sulzbach, 1817."

The story was clear to all. Before the trial, the selectman explained to the organ builder, the Frenchman had killed his rival and had made way with his body, possibly sinking it in the river. He had hidden in the organ pipe the dead man's coat and valuables, which would have identified him, should the body be found. When the builders came, the Frenchman, alarmed at the possible discovery of his crime, tried to remove the incriminating articles from the organ pipe, had lost his balance and had fallen in himself to a terrible death.

The excitement in Sulzbach, when the news was learned, was great, and many reproaches were heaped on the memory of the dead Frenchman.

The organ is the pride of the village, even today, and the townspeople never grow tired of telling the occasional visitor of its unusual story.

With Prey in Grasp,

Tiger Sensed Danger

Most wild animals are specialists; that is to say, they are highly developed in one particular direction. The tiger is great as a stalker. His feet seem to be shod with silence. A gentleman, for many years a resident of India, cites an experience of one neighbor illustrative of this point.

He had been much annoyed by tigers, and at last tied a bullock out in a clearing and took up his own position in a tree to wait till the tiger should come after the bait. The ground was covered with dried leaves, which in hot weather are so brittle that even the walking of a bird over them can be heard for a good distance.

In no very long time a large tiger slipped out of the forest and slowly edged toward the bullock. His method was so elaborate and careful that the man who saw it used to declare that it would have been worth a thousand rupees to any young sportsman to have witnessed it.

So carefully did he put down each paw, and so gradually did he crush the leaves under it, that not a sound was to be heard. Between him and the bullock was a stump about four feet high, with long, projecting surface roots. This, plainly, the tiger looked upon as a godsend.

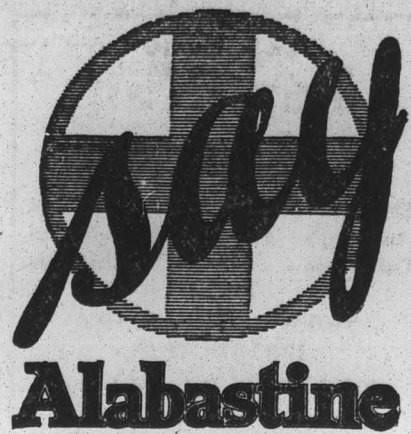

He got upon one of the roots, balanced himself carefully, and so was able to walk quickly and silently as far as the stump. He approached so gradually and noiselessly, and his color against the brown leaves was so invisible, that he was close upon the bullock before he was perceived.

Then, instantly the bullock charged. The tiger eluded him, and in a moment more had his paws on the bullock's neck, ready to drag him down. Then, like a flash, he caught sight of the rope by which the bullock was tied, and sprang into the forest.

Mythological Lore

We often speak of Nemesis pursuing someone. Nemesis was the goddess of revenge, who mercilessly hurried to punishment guilty souls condemned by the goddess of justice. Her name has become a synonym for retribution.

"As sure as Fate" is a common phrase. Why is fate so sure? The Fates were three sisters who controlled men's destinies. The first sister spun life's thread, the second twisted it, and the third cut it off with her shears. They alone dared oppose the sovereign will of the gods, and they issued irrevocable decrees.

COLD ROAST BEEF

IN A small family a roast of any size will last too long to be enjoyed more than three times. The following are some suggestions for using left-over roast:

Hot Roast Beef Sandwiches.

For four good-sized sandwiches prepare one cupful of brown sauce, or use the gravy left from the roast, adding to it, when hot, one tablespoonful of finely minced sour pickle. Cut very thin as many slices of rare roast beef as needed. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and add to it one-quarter of a teaspoonful of made mustard. Spread the bread with this. Dip the slices of beef into the hot sauce and place them on the bread. Sprinkle with a very little crushed cold bacon before putting on the slice of bread. Serve on a hot platter, pouring the boiling sauce over all.

For a supper dish, sliced cold roast beef is an excellent and well-liked way of serving the meat. Sliced very thin and garnished with cress or parsley, it is especially attractive in appearance.

Beef Pie.

Cut cold roast beef into inch-square pieces, using two cupfuls. Put into a quart baking dish and season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper, one tablespoonful of tomato catsup or or-third cupful of cooked, seasoned tomatoes. Pour over the meat one cupful of liquid, using equal quantities of gravy and hot water. Cover with a crust of baking powder biscuit dough. Cut into the form of biscuit, which leaves openings for the steam to escape.

Dark Steamed Pudding.

Take one cupful of finely chopped beef suet, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of cold water, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoon-fuls of cinnamon, and one of cloves. Sift all the dry ingredients, and mix thoroughly. Steam three hours and serve with a hard sauce.

HATS "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"; ONE-PIECE FROCK IS POPULAR

THIS season's chapeaux are surely "saying it with flowers" first, last and all the time. When fashion prescribes flowers in abundance, fascinating millinery is the result—which exactly describes the new spring hats.

Not only are our chapeaux generously beflowered, but in an overflow of enthusiasm stylists are pinning boutonnières to match on milady's coat lapel or dropping a wee bouquet on her shoulder. Sometimes this floweret is attached to a ribbon which serves as a connecting link between chapeau and bouquet. This novelty of matching a boutonniere to the flowers on the hat is favored by smart Parisiennes, and milliners everywhere are encouraging a one-piece cloth dress. Far be it from us to wrest any honors from the ensemble costume than which there is no more popular fashion this season. However, as a faithful record of the mode, be it stated here that the one-piece frock still occupies a conspicuous niche in the realm of present-day modes.

In the modern street dress of cloth, sleeves are a very important item. That they must be long, buttoning to the wrist, is fashion's edict. This does not interfere with varied treatment, as the picture herewith bears witness. In fact designers are bestowing real artistry in the fashioning of the long sleeve.

Milliners Are Beflowering Hats.

this lovely fashion by selling with the hat an extra matching flower to pin on coat or frock.

One of the most charming uses of flowers is the covering of the entire crown with them as noted in the second hat to the right center in this illustration of flower-bedecked hats. Violets were used in this instance topped with a single lovely pink rose.

Milliners particularly favor roses this season. Note them on the hat illustrated first in this group; also on the piquant straw shape to the right below.

Novelty is the charm of most of the little handmade straw hats. The model

This also may be said of the new high-collared effect, which is also characteristic of the more exclusive cloths. It is the choker collar which imparts supreme individuality to the model illustrated. Chinese embroidery and a heavily beaded ornament lend a vivid note of color to this navy blue cloth conception. By the way, there is great rejoicing in the realm of fashion over the reappearance of navy blue or the field of colors sponsored by the mode. In discussing color special mention must be made of gray. Its importance is increasing hourly, especially since the first lady of the land selected moonstone gray for wear at the center left of the picture is cleverly fashioned of taffeta silk and fine milan straw tape, with violets perched at the very tip-top of the unique silk-covered flange.

Ultra Fashionable Frock.

Another interesting method of positioning flowers on the hat is to start at the top of the crown, showering them down over one side as shown on the milan straw hat in the group.

When is a street frock, of marked individuality? Answer: When it dares not to be an ensemble costume but definitely plays the role of at the recent inauguration ceremonies. Front flares are also often introduced in the otherwise straightline dress for street wear. The idea of accenting this flare with a border of fur seems to be heartily indorsed by the majority of designers.

Special emphasis is being placed on distinctly wearable cloth types this season, many of which look like coats but are really dresses. The introduction of the yoke gives a new aspect to tailored types.

MANY VARIATIONS IN ROLLS MAY BE MADE

Add Raisins, Chopped Nuts, Currants or Cinnamon.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many variations in rolls may be had by shaping dough into different forms—crescents, finger rolls, or twists, or by adding currants, raisins, chopped nuts, or sugar and cinnamon. The rolls may also be glazed with sugar dissolved in milk or with a thin icing of white of egg and sugar.

Dainty dinner rolls can be made as follows, says the United States Department of Agriculture in "Farmers' Bulletin No. 1136, entitled "Baking in the Home." When the dough is ready for molding, pinch off pieces about the size of a small egg. Roll each piece between the palms of the hands until round, then roll with the hand on a board until six inches long and slightly tapering toward the ends. Place about one inch apart on a greased baking sheet. Let rise until trebled in bulk, brush with milk, and bake for about twenty minutes in a fairly hot oven.

Crescents. Roll the balls of dough as described for finger rolls and when placing them on the baking sheet form them into crescents, pinching down the ends slightly to hold the shape. Let rise, brush with milk, and bake as described under finger rolls.

Fancy Sweet Rolls.

Current or Cinnamon Buns.

Take a portion of dough when it is ready for molding, place on a floured bread board, and roll into a rectangular sheet one-half inch in thickness. Pin down the corners to keep in shape. Spread lightly with softened butter, sprinkle with powdered (or soft) sugar, and strew with currants or cinnamon. Roll up the sheet as for a jelly roll, cut into inch slices, and place on a greased sheet about one inch apart. Let rise until about trebled in bulk, sprinkle the top with chopped nuts, or brush with a mixture of sugar and milk, and bake for about 25 minutes in a fairly hot oven. If desired, these buns may be baked without any top coating and iced just a few minutes before taking from the oven.

Test of Good Home

From a California home demonstration agent comes this outline, contained in a report to the United States Department of Agriculture as to what is a test of a good home. Its points are worth thinking over by every housewife, and her own achievements should be checked up by it.

"Good homemaking must be combined with good housekeeping. The home must make for health and efficiency. It must provide good mental associations and reflections, for the early impressions of children live long; it must train for citizenship by establishing ideals and standards, and must contribute something to the welfare of the community."

Meat Croquettes

3 cupfuls cooked meat chopped, salt. 1/2 cupful thick white sauce. 1/2 cupful finely chopped green pepper. 1 egg. Mix in order given; mold into forms allowing 1 tablespoonful of mixture for each croquette. Roll in crumbs, egg and crumbs again. Fry in deep, hot fat.

SALAD DRESSING WITH COTTAGE CHEESE

Cottage Cheese Salad Dressing Adds Piquancy to Any Salad.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) 1/4 tablespoonful mustard, 1/4 cupful cold water, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, 1 tablespoonful sugar, 1/2 cupful sweet milk, 4 tablespoonfuls cottage cheese, 1/2 teaspoonful soda, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, 1/2 cupful vinegar, 1/2 teaspoonful cayenne pepper.

Rub the dry ingredients together and add egg yolks slightly beaten. Add melted butter, cold milk, and hot vinegar, in the order named, stirring until perfectly smooth. Cook the mixture in a double boiler until thickened. To the stiffly beaten whites of eggs add four tablespoonfuls of cottage cheese, which has first been neutralized with soda, and fold the mixture into the cooked dressing. Set the pan into a bowl of cold water and beat well until cool and smooth.

CHICKEN STOCK ON HAND VERY USEFUL

One Secret of Flavoring Is Use of Garlic.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The advantages in buying a fowl or old tough chicken occasionally, or in having to take out the nonlayers from the flock and use them, are that when properly cooked the meat may be enjoyed in a number of ways and it is always useful to have plenty of chicken stock on hand. Chicken broth may be delicious, or flat and tasteless, according to the way in which it has been prepared. One secret of flavoring a chicken soup well is to cook a clove of garlic with the chicken, taking it out when the meat is done. This is practically imperceptible to those who have a prejudice against garlic, but it gives tone and zest to both the meat and the broth. Lacking garlic, a leek or a small onion should be used instead. A small amount of celery flavor is also an improvement, either in the form of the cooked vegetable itself, celery salt, or celery seed. Care should be taken not to make the celery flavor predominate over the delicate chicken flavor.

The United States Department of Agriculture gives the recipe below for cooking a chicken so that there will be plenty of well-seasoned broth. The chicken meat may be taken from the bones when tender and served in a variety of ways. It may be creamed, served a la king, used as chicken pie with gravy made from part of the sauce, served as curried chicken, cut up for chicken salad, or minced for chicken hash, chicken spaghetti, chicken croquettes, or chicken sandwich paste.

1 chicken, old fowl 2 or 3 branches may be used, of celery weighing 4 to 5 1 or 2 carrots. pounds. 1 turnip. 3 quarts of cold salt and pepper water. 1 leek or clove of Chopped parsley, garlic.

Clean the chicken carefully and cut in pieces. Place in a kettle and pour the cold water on it. Cook slowly or simmer until the chicken is tender. Tie the vegetables into a "bouquet" and let boil with the meat for about one hour before the meat is done. Remove the meat and add salt and pepper to taste. If all the vegetables cannot be had, the flavor may be improved by crushing a teaspoonful of celery seed and boiling that with the soup. Add a little finely chopped parsley to each plate when serving. When ready to use, reheat and serve with rice or dumplings.

Eggs Baked in Tomato Sauce

New and appetizing ways of preparing eggs add variety to the menu for lunch or supper. Here is a recipe recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture:

2 cupfuls tomato pulp and juice (put through a sieve). 1/2 teaspoonful celery salt, 1/4 teaspoonful pepper. 2 tablespoonfuls butter. 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls salt. 3 tablespoonfuls flour.

Make a sauce of the ingredients. Put one-half of the sauce in a baking dish, break six eggs, one at a time, into a saucer and slide each egg into the sauce, taking care not to break the yolk. Cover with the remaining sauce and sprinkle three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese over the top. Put in the oven and bake until the eggs are set. Serve hot on toasted bread or with boiled rice.

Jellied Vegetable Salad

1 envelope gelatin. 1/2 cupful cold water. 2 1/2 cupfuls tomato. 2 tablespoonfuls vinegar. 1 teaspoonful onion juice. 1 bay leaf. 1 teaspoonful celery salt, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 cupful midget lima beans, 1/2 cupful peas, 1/2 cupful diced carrots.

Soak gelatin in cold water till soft. Cook tomatoes with onion, bay leaf and salt ten minutes. Add vinegar and gelatin. Mix well and strain. Add vegetables, turn into gem pans or mold moistened with cold water, and chill. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with salad dressing.

Hoover Accorded Honor by Many Universities

The favorite toastmaster's quip at Washington dinners explaining, when Herbert Hoover is not among the guests, that the secretary of commerce is away at some university taking his two hundred and fiftieth honorary LL. D., was recently supplemented with data more exact in detail. It appears that the late food administrator has an honorary LL. D. or Ph. D. from 18 American universities and colleges, in addition to holding degrees from Liege, Brussels, Warsaw, Cracow and Oxford.

A speaker at a dinner recently informed his astonished listeners that Doctor Hoover had more degrees than eight Al Smiths, four George Harveys, seven William Jennings Bryans, ten McAdams, four Judge Garys, two and one-half John W. Davises, ten Otto Kahns and twenty LaFollettes, and as many as any two university presidents, in the world.—Adams in "Pithy Personalities," in Boston News Bureau.

"Soaked" Fresh Prisoner

Justice McLaughlin of Buffalo, N. Y., frequently takes a kindly interest in the characters that drift into his courtroom. When a prisoner from Pittsburgh was arraigned on the charge of vagrancy the judge thought he had a subject for moral suasion. "What can I do for you?" he asked. "I am here to help you." "Lend me $2," the man suggested. "Thirty days," was his answer.

Chapter XXXI ON THE BAY

The year 1878 was one of those very different years, for which the touring public has never been able to account. Southern California had more rain than usual; snow fell in the mountains later than usual; and while the rest of the country was sweltering we held the thermometer to an even 72 and then suddenly, in September experienced the hottest days ever known here.

The list of new books for 1878 included "Art in the House," by Loftis, "Arizona as it is," by Hiram Hodge, "Dolly" by Mrs. F. H. Burnett, "Letters on Art" by Ruskin, and "Tom's Wife" by a Married Bachelor; all of which with the exception of the Ruskin work have been dead these long years since. Dead and forgotten. The Union of January 4, 1878 spoke in this way of the telephone:

"—spreading all over Europe. In Germany it is now a part of the Post-office system. It is more in use in that country than in the United States, because nothing is paid to the patentee, whereas here every telephone pays an annual charge of $50. In a recent telephone experiment in connection with the cable, 21 1/2 miles long, between Dover and Calais, there was not the slightest failure during a period of two hours. Though three other wires were busy at the same time, every word was heard through the telephone and individual voices were distinguished."

There was no telephoning hereabouts in 1878; though later in the year certain experiments were carried on between San Diego and some place in Arizona. Young Thomas Alva Edison had a prophetic article in one of the popular magazines of the day on "The Future of the Phonograph." The invention was in its infancy, but already the world was awake to its importance. The voice of Adelina Patti had been recorded upon a fragile disk and with weird grinding walls and shrieks returned recognizable.

The important question agitating the world at large was "Money and Legal Tender." Every paper and magazine carried long articles on the subject. Lecturers sought out every village and hamlet wherein to spread rabid doctrine of one sort or another. Books upon books were issued discussing the currency question from all angles. The West strongly opposed the use of paper money. And this opposition has not been wholly broken to this day, as everyone newly arrived from the East discovers to his surprise. We like the feel of a load of silver cartwheels in our pockets.

Well, here on Point Loma nothing happened, as usual. A commentary on the conditions here is the delinquent tax list published February 4. The list of unknown owners of property at La Playa enumerates 721 lots; unknown owners of pueblo lands in the vicinity of La Playa held 55 acres; of lots unclaimed at Roseville there were 51 and of unclaimed pueblo lands elsewhere on Point Loma about 185 acres.

But if nothing happened on Point Loma there were two important happenings on San Diego Bay during 1878. They were the visit of the Coast Survey steamer "Hassler," Captain George W. Coffin, arriving in port Sunday morning, January 27, and that of the U. S. Lighthouse Tender "Shubrick" which was in port in July and November.

The "Hassler" came in under instructions to make an immediate survey of the approaches to the harbor and planned to be here some six or eight weeks. On February 7, the Union published this item.

"Desirous of knowing the reason for the sudden orders given the 'Hassler' to come down here and make an immediate survey of the harbor and entrance thereto, the President of the Board of Trustees (of San Diego) telegraphed the city's agent at Washington for information, and yesterday received the following reply: 'No survey having been made since 1895, it was done at the instance of a congressman who desires further information; and Senator Sargent has re-questioned that the soundings should not be hastily taken, so that the fullest justice should be done."

(Signed) D. Felsenheld.

On the 24th of February the work of Captain Coffin and his fellow-officers was reported as follows:

"Up to the present time a complete survey has been made inside the harbor from Horton's wharf out to Ballast Point at the entrance to the bay. Seven thousand soundings have been taken between these points, and the whole work has been mapped. The map was completed yesterday and is forwarded to Washington today.
